Other important information

- Disclosures without prior authorization. Rockingham Insurance is permitted by law to share information about you, even without your authorization, with: (1) a third party if it is reasonably necessary to enable the party to perform services for us, such as marketing of our own products and services, eligibility and coverage determinations, claims investigations, appraisals, or the detection of fraud or material misrepresentations; (2) to a group policyholder or affiliate if the information is reasonably necessary for the group policyholder or affiliate to conduct a review or audit of services provided and claims experience; (3) any of our affiliated companies who provide services to you; (4) insurance regulatory authorities; (5) law enforcement agencies, governmental authorities, or other third parties to protect our interests in response to a subpoena, to report illegal activities, or when otherwise required by law to do so; (6) persons or organizations conducting actuarial or research studies; and (7) to a medical care institution or professional for the purposes of verifying insurance coverage.
- Additional methods of information collection. In addition to information collected as described above, Rockingham Insurance may also collect information through other means such as property inspections when you file an application or submit a claim. Please be advised that upon request, Rockingham Insurance will provide you an opportunity to be interviewed in connection with any investigatory report obtained in connection with your application or your customer relationship with us.
- Access to information. Upon your written request, and at your expense (except as provided below), Rockingham Insurance will provide (i) a copy of the relevant information we have obtained about you in connection with your application for insurance with us and while you were our customer, (ii) the consumer reporting agency's name and address from whom we have received a report and (iii) the identity, if recorded, of those to whom we have disclosed your information during the two (2) years preceding your request, or if such information is not recorded, then the identity of those to whom we usually disclose such information. If we have increased your premium, denied or changed your coverage based on information that we have obtained about you, we will provide you a copy of the information described in the preceding sentence free of charge if you request such information within ninety (90) days of our action. Further, upon your request made to the agency that prepared the relevant consumer report about you, that agency will provide you with a copy at your expense. However, that report will be free of charge if we have increased your premium, denied or changed your coverage based on information in that report and you request a copy from the consumer reporting agency within ninety (90) days of our action.
- Disputing information on a consumer report. In order to dispute or change the information on your consumer report, you should file your dispute directly with the consumer reporting agency involved. Please be advised that the consumer reporting agency simply provides information to us. They do not make insurance decisions and cannot explain why our decisions are made. If you feel that our decisions are based on any information that is not correct or not complete, we will review it at your request. If we agree with you, we will make the corrections in our file and re-evaluate our decisions. If we do not agree with you, we will provide you with the reasons that we disagree, and you may file a short statement of dispute with us. This statement will be sent with any disclosure of the information that we make. It, or a notice of our decision to correct, amend or delete information as applicable, may also be sent to anyone you designate who may have received such information about you in the past two (2) years or as otherwise required by law.
- Information retention by insurance support organizations. Information obtained by an insurance support organization may be retained by the insurance support organization and disclosed to other persons.
